Juniors Present Plans for College Dance in December

Arrangements Well Underway Committee Reports

ASK ALL TO TAKE PART

Stressing the responsibility of the individual girl for the total success of the College Dance in December, Emily Plummer, Junior Class President, presented the plans for the affair to the student body in Student Government meeting on Tuesday night. She pointed out that, although the Juniors are sponsoring the dance, it is a College project and should be supported by every girl and kept up to the standard Hollins sets for her dances.

On Wednesday night, November 8th, the Juniors will canvass the halls to find how many girls expect to ask escorts and how many will attend the dance. The names of the escorts must be handed in to representatives of the Committee on Invitations before Friday, November 10th. Those desiring to invite escorts after this date should hand the names directly to Ann Hemphill, Chairman of the Committee. The Invitation Committee will issue all invitations. Due to the size of the student body no alumnae will be invited to attend the dance.

The orchestra for the dance has not yet been chosen, due to the fact that several have still to submit their bids.

The receiving line will stand in the Green Drawing-Room and after greeting their hostesses the girls with their escorts will go directly to Tayloe Gymnasium, where dancing will begin at nine o'clock. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

All request numbers for dances must be handed in to Carol Faulkner, Chairman of the Orchestra Committee, before the day of the dance.

President Randolph Visits Colleges and Century of Progress

Contrary to general opinion, the Century of Progress was only one of a series of places which Dr. Randolph visited during her week's absence from the Hollins campus. From October 25th to November 1st she visited Chicago and many universities of national fame, with a view of obtaining knowledge about modern educational problems.

The University of Cincinnati was one of the most important places at which she stopped. While there, she conferred with its President, Dr. Raymond Walters, one of the nation's greatest educators, who spoke at Commencement ceremonies here last June. Among other places of special interest which she visited were the University of Chicago, Bryn Mawr, Goucher and Trinity College for Women and Howard University in Washington. These visits were made with the major view of casting some light on future curriculum study at Hollins.

While in the nation's capital, Dr. Randolph stayed at the national club house of the American Association of Universities for Women.

Besides visits to the two colleges there, which were mentioned previously, she visited both Gunston and Arlington Halls, junior colleges in this city. While she was at Arlington Hall she gave a very enlightening talk to the student body.

At the Century of Progress, proper, she visited principally educational exhibits

"STUDENT LIFE" TAKES SECOND PLACE

Charles Gilbert Burr, an honor student at V. P. I., was elected President of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association at its closing session at the University of Richmond, October 28th. Blacksburg and East Radford were selected as the places for the 1934 Convention after the Executive Committee had carefully considered invitations from Washington and Lee University at Lexington and the American University in Washington, D. C.

After an address, Dean Henry Gratton Doyle presented the silver trophies to eight first-place winners in the publications contest, and a like number of honorable mention certificates.

The Ring-Tum Phi, student newspaper of Washington and Lee University, carried off the cup in the class for student newspapers published weekly or more frequently. The Richmond Collegian was given honorable mention.

The American Eagle, of American University in Washington, took the cup in the Class "B" newspapers, for all publications issued less frequently than weekly. STUDENT LIFE, of Hollins College, was given honorable mention.

The Traveller, published at Stratford College, in Danville, won the cup in the class of newspapers published in junior colleges and high schools. The Musketier, of Hargrave Military Academy, was given honorable mention.

The 1933 Bugle, annual publication of V. P. I., took first place in the annuals group for all publications of 225 pages or more. The Helianthus, of the Randolph-Macon Woman's College was given second place.

The Bridgewater College Ripples took the cup in the class for all annuals with less than 225 pages. The Bluestocking, of Mary Baldwin College, was given honorable mention.

The Shrapnel, annual of the Staunton Military Academy, won the cup in the class for junior colleges and preparatory schools, while The Acorn, of Blackstone College for Girls, was given honorable mention.

The V. P. I. Skipper was named the best humorous publication, with The Old Maid, of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, taking honorable mention.

The Virginia Tech Engineer, the only publication in its field in the state, was automatically given first place in that class.

The Convention opened Friday afternoon, October 27th, in Maryland Hall, with Beverly L. Britton presiding. After a welcome and preliminary business meeting the delegates were divided into discussion groups which met Friday and Saturday.

John Denson, managing editor of The Richmond Times-Dispatch, assisted by W. S. Lacy, of The Charlottesville Daily Progress, led in the newspaper discussions. Christian Munt, associate editor of The Richmond Magazine, led the magazine group. A. A. Lubersky, vice president and sales manager of the S. K.

Freya Changes are Made Public at Convocation

Striking changes which have taken place within the Organization of Freya were presented to the student body by Helen Stephenson, Chairman, at Convocation, Wednesday, October 25th.

Before discussing these changes, however, she read the beautiful legend of the Norse Goddess, Freya, whose presence was necessary to the springtime of her land. Miss Stephenson then gave a brief history of the gradual evolution of the organization on this campus from a very secret society to its present form.

There will, she said, be no more "walking" of the members, a custom which has been associated with the organization for years, except on May Day and Founder's Day; there will be no Hallowe'en pageant under the willow trees; and all new members will be announced to the student body instead of having the supposed secrecy surrounding the membership.

The requirements for membership were placed on a definite basis instead of the personal opinion which has previously determined the choice of new members. Miss Stephenson read the list of requirements which were later posted on the Student Government bulletin board. She summed them up under the three headings of scholarship, leadership and creative ability.

At the close of her talk Miss Stephenson announced, for the first time in the history of the Organization of Freya, the names of the new members. They are, from the Senior Class: Clair Backs, Lillian Burns and Dorothy Donovan; and from the Junior Class: Emily Plummer, Susanna Turner and Mary Anna Nettleton.

"The Enchanted April" is Chosen as the Fall Play

"The Enchanted April," by Kane Campbell, has been chosen by the Dramatic Association for the fall production, to be presented Saturday evening, November 25th. It is a modern comedy written about four English women who, bored with life, decide to take a vacation. They are all strangers to each other, yet as each had been attracted by an advertisement in the paper they decide to rent an old castle on the shores of the Mediterranean for the month of April. The plot is interesting and very amusing, particularly in the incidents with the Italian servants who speak no English.

Lady Caroline Dester....EVLYN GREEVER
Mrs. Fisher.....ELEANOR WEBB
Lottie.....ADRIA KELLOGG
Rose Arbutnot.....FRANCES ELKINS
Briggs.....MARY HELEN HIRSCHFELD
Mellersh Wilkins.....ROSALIE BATES
Arundel.....CHARIS MCELROY
Francesca.....PERSIS CROWELL
Dominica.....ELEANOR CADBURY
Clerk.....JANE PLITT

The Student Coach will be Harriet Anne Jackson; Assistant Student Coach, Doll Sweet; Chairman of Lighting, Abby Castle; Chairman of Costumes, Bebo Weaver, and Chairman of Make-Up, Adelaide Rawles.

DON'T "DAY DREAM"

German Student Speaks on Nazi Party Evolution

Hitler and his government do not represent a political party in Germany with a fixed party program. The difference between his régime and the many systems before him is that there stands a nation behind him, a nation which only has been unified by him.

The importance of national Socialism is not its new agricultural schemes, its financial and industrial projects, but the idea that stands behind them. It is an entirely new way of thinking, an entirely new spirit that has taken hold of the whole nation.

For an understanding of this movement its development must be traced back to the conditions after the war or even during the last period of the war.

The multitude of German states had only been unified by Bismarck in 1871. This "Reich" and its traditions were still too young and not yet strong enough when they had to meet with a five-years war against the whole world. After five brave years it crashed to pieces, and nothing was left but utter dissolution and helplessness.

Within the country, Communistic terror spreading from town to town, party strife, inflation, lack of leaders; from outside, oppression and humiliation, parts of old German ground taken away from us on every side of the country, English, French and black troops all along the Rhine and, which was most humiliating, a constitution and a governmental system which was forced upon us by the Allies.

This was what was left of Germany when Hitler, then an obscure common soldier, founded his German-Workman's Party in Munich together with six others, as unknown as himself. An ardent fire of love for his country gave him the strength in those days to take up the cause of his country, to devote his life to the task of building Germany up again, to fight parliamentary party strife, to educate a sense of responsibility towards the community in every single member of it, to create a spirit of "common welfare above private interest" in everyone, and to abolish class hatred and class strife as he found it in Communism, which became a spreading danger as a consequence of the bad conditions. His aim in the fight of Communism was to guide every single individual back to the community, to give everyone, every workman and every unemployed, a social standing and share in the life of the nation.

The way from the seven members of that unknown party in Munich to the nation-wide movement of millions as it is now was not an easy one. Two years ago every national Socialist still was an outlaw who could be killed in the street or chased from his job. In the fight against Communism Hitler built up a guard for himself and for his meetings, the brownshirts, his storm troops. Four hundred of them were killed and more than 40,000 of his adherents were seriously wounded during the years. And yet the movement grew on and on and was enthusiastically taken up in every class of the nation. Hitler, of all the multitude of parties, was the only one who did not make any promises. He saw the utter ruin in Germany's financial and social life. He saw the hard task before him to build up again and instead of vain promises he challenged every single Ger-

Many Guests Invited to Meet President

STUDENTS TO ATTEND

Honoring President Randolph, the Hollins Board of Trustees will give a reception at the College on Friday evening, November 24th, from eight to eleven. Friends, parents and alumnae from Roanoke, the county, Salem and nearby regions have been invited. The student body and faculty will attend and will be asked to aid in entertaining the college guests. Due to the unusually large group of visitors and the limited accommodations guests have been invited for different hours during the evening.

The receiving line will be in the drawing-room and guests will be entertained there. Refreshments will be served in both Keller and the dining room—coffee in the former and ices and cakes in the latter. The columns of these two rooms will be decorated with smilax, and refreshments will be served from small tables about the rooms. Decorations will be by Fallon's, of Roanoke, and Demonet's, of Washington, D. C., will be the caterers.

Music will be played during the reception by members of the faculty of the School of Music.

Members of the Board of Trustees who are expected to attend are: Mr. D. D. Hull, Jr., Mr. J. B. Fishburn, Mr. Junius P. Fishburn, Mr. C. Edwin Michael, Mr. Charles I. Lunsford, Mr. W. C. Stephenson, Former Governor E. Lee Trinkle, Mr. C. F. Cocke, Miss Matty L. Cocke, Dr. Marguerite Hearsey and Mrs. S. H. McVitty.

The student body is asked to aid in every way possible to entertain and direct the college guests. At a later date definite committee appointments will be given.

Dr. Poteat States: "Moral Dualism is Modern Difficulty"

Declaring that "the behavior of God is the secret of human conduct," Dr. E. M. Poteat, of Raleigh, North Carolina, speaking in a series of addresses here, gave the essence of the challenge to the modern world as the task of becoming morally related to the universe. "Because we cannot deal with ourselves in terms of moral love," he said, "we have hatred, strife and confusion in the world to-day." Living in a world of inverted ideals "we are sedulously disinclined to study the art of living." Since people who are morally mature act in response to two motives, self and others, Dr. Poteat pointed out that we, by subjecting our conduct to one control of love, can become morally perfect as Jesus claimed. Character to-day, however, is a matter of pretension rather than courage and we must overcome with a new courage the moral dualism governing us. When love has become the dominant motive in moral choices, Dr. Poteat stated, we shall have achieved moral success and have become morally related to the universe in answer to the challenge confronting us to-day.

ABOLISH CHAPEL MONITORS

Inconsistent with the new spirit of Chapel services are the Junior monitors who stand at the Chapel stairways to keep order. If the present system of Chapel management is what it represents itself to be the monitors are superfluous and should be abolished. Monitors are contrary to the practice of self-government under an honor system. Since this honor system includes Chapel attendance and conduct these guardians of the silence are not necessary. Why not, therefore, relieve them of their duties as the members of the "vigilance committee" have been relieved of theirs? If the student body is unable to keep a respectful silence in Chapel the situation must be met in some way. The appointment of monitors, however, is a direct denial of the effectiveness of the honor system as applied to Chapel services.

ANOTHER LOST GENERATION?

(Editorial from The Barnard Bulletin)

Over a week ago, with the Disarmament Conference still a last hope upon the horizon, when the situation abroad had not yet reached its boiling point, we remarked by way of reminder to ourselves and our readers on the peculiar position in which the members of the present graduating class find themselves, as the first post-war generation.

"We are the children of the aftermath," we said, "and the inheritors of a lost generation." What may have been an echo of a far-off contingency has since become an immediate and pressing danger; the lesson of the past has been forgotten, and we, in our turn, may become another lost generation.

We have heard since of the goulsh wagers now being placed by Lloyd's of London at the odds of two to one, that there will be another European war within eighteen months, and we have been reminded that this firm has never yet been wrong. . . . With all the earnestness of which we as inexperienced undergraduates are capable, we want to urge upon you who are threatened, the absolute necessity of becoming articulate in self-defense. You college students whose pacifist activities a year or more ago furnished new hope to "impractical Utopians" striving to build a sane social order must arouse your jaded social consciences in what may prove a final effort to save yourselves.

And if you ask me what there is for you to do we can urge on you the public and repeated expression of your refusal to be sacrificed to the greed and ambition of capitalistic and decadent Europe. Nor should you be misled by the earnest protestations of American public leaders that the coming war will not involve us. A few more Nazi attacks on American citizens traveling in Germany will make us as blatantly anti-German as we were in 1917; and the callous jingoism of some of our yellow journals will complete the devil's work. There remain for you the newspapers, to whom you should continually address yourselves; there remains the influence you can exert upon your families; there remains the possibility of direct petition to the administration in Washington. . . . In this crisis it is not only desirable, it is vital that we and the world know where the college student stands.

STUDENT FORUM

SHALL WE CUT OUR CLASSES?

Class cuts are a privilege that many colleges do not grant. We should appreciate them, therefore, as a privilege and be intelligent in our use of them.

The main purpose of cuts is to give more freedom in scheduling our study hours. And the reason for giving more freedom in study hours is to help us become better students. Keeping all this in mind we can weigh the pros and cons of taking a certain cut, and so learn to cut intelligently.

If, after deciding that in a certain case we can accomplish more by cutting a class than attending, there may be some other factors which effect our action. We may, perhaps, fear our professors will resent our absence. This reason is absurd, for the faculty realize as well as we that when we are hard pressed for study time nonattendance may be more profitable than attending a certain class.

Another factor that might effect our action is our fear of missing something if we do not attend a class. Now what goes on in a class is no mystery to any of us, and we can usually judge what will be discussed by our previous assignments.

A desire to use all our allotted cuts whether we need them or not is an unintelligent motive for cutting. To avoid this we suggest attendance at class when there is doubt as to the need of cutting.

If we learn to analyze our motives we can be more intelligent and mature in our use of cuts. And we will help ourselves to become more independent students.

FREYA

The organization of Freya, which has existed on the Hollins campus since its origin here thirty years ago, has changed its form so materially as to be scarcely recognizable. The goddess Freya, patroness of Love and the Spring, no longer has as her hand-

Medical Aptitude Tests to be Given

Aptitude tests will be given by the Association of American Medical Colleges to premedical students on December 6, 1933. This test, which has been adopted by the Association as one of the normal requirements for admission, should be taken by all students who expect to apply for entrance to a medical school in the fall of 1934. Students interested should make application immediately to Miss Sittler for the test will be given only once during this school year. A fee of one dollar is required of each student taking the test.

This test is used by approximately ninety per cent. of the approved medical schools as a consideration in the choice of their students. Last year 9,131 students from 546 colleges took the test under the supervision of the Association of American Medical Colleges.

Riders Try Paper Chasing Cross Country

On Saturday, October 28th, the Riding Club welcomed its new members by inviting them to go on a paper chase. The trails, marked by various colored paper streamers placed at baffling intervals, were laid in the two back fields. Each rider, starting from the ring, followed one of the six trails and returned to the ring when she had reached the end of her trail. Harmon won, having returned from the hunt in seventeen minutes. The rest of the times are as follows: Turner, twenty-two minutes; Winfree, twenty-four minutes; Sweet, twenty-six minutes; Hamilton, twenty-nine minutes; Bankson, thirty minutes; Riefsnyder, thirty-one minutes; Warner, thirty-six minutes; Spencer, thirty-seven minutes; and Sanford, thirty-seven and one-half minutes. Mr. Turner and Mary Van officiated as judges. The contest was such a success that the Riding Club has already had many requests for another.

maidens a few girls who are chosen, because of certain high achievements and qualities to serve her in solemn and mysterious rites. Her worship is now entirely voluntary and open. She now delights in the freely bestowed allegiance of those who choose to follow her ideal of Beauty in life. Her welfare and her very existence, is dependent upon the spirit with this allegiance is undertaken.

Obviously, then, it is not without hesitation that her mysterious rites are set aside. There is a beauty, an intangible satisfaction, about the presence on campus of a group of girls who, quietly and individually, attempt to personify those traits of character and those abstract qualities which they most admire. That the names of the girls were never announced, that their rituals were secret, that as an organized group they did nothing tangible except pay homage to their goddess in an annual May Day—all combined to make the very existence of Freya instinct with beauty. There was much in Freya of significance—even to girls who were not themselves members. Although one seldom spoke, or even, perhaps, thought of it, its existence was felt and was a positive symbol of the highest and best that Hollins stands for.

Particularly did we hate to relinquish the traditional beauty, established by the sincere efforts of successive generations of Hollins girls, at a time when the whole world about us seems to be changing:

"Wandering between two worlds, one dead,
The other powerless to be born."

Just such times, we believed, were most in need of the stabilizing influence of the old and tried. To abolish, to disregard, to tear down merely for the joy of dissection was not, it was obvious, in order.

In full consciousness, however, of the value and sheer loveliness of the past, there was another aspect to be considered. Mere tradition, without the spirit which should be a vital part of it, misses its purpose entirely. "Does one group of people," came the direct question, "have the right to judge other people, not on the definite things they have done, but on the kinds of individuals they are?" A person may easily possess exceptional sensitivities and deep perception, yet never have revealed herself to any who may make it known. There is, then, no place for subjective choice upon the basis of what a girl is. But it is possible to judge, to some extent accurately and upon a reasonably objective basis, those things which a person has done. In other words, one may recognize definite accomplishments. There is, however, no fairness in the organized recognition of the high quality of personal character. One feels much less hesitancy about discussing, "What has she done?" than "What sort of a person is she?"

In choosing, therefore, the decision seemed to lie between keeping the beauty of the old when its basis was wrong, and adapting the new which, though it lacked the halo of tradition, was founded upon a more honest principle. The consequence you know. The romantic gave place to the just, the beautiful form to the more beautiful truth of content. It is not, we would have you believe, a roughshod disregard for the past but a sympathetic evolution from it. Quite as one does not wear but puts away in tissue paper a gown which is outmoded but filled with dearest memories, so we would put away the form but keep intact the spirit of the old Freya. A thing not belonging to a few initiated ones but the valued possession of each should be the challenge that "by guarding the mysteries of life in our lives, and bringing to others the light of our living, we may make the spirit of Freya to dwell forever among men."

Doll Sweet Discusses Italy in I. R. C. Group

Doll Sweet spoke on Italy in the I. R. C. meeting Sunday evening, November 5th. She began by showing Italy of to-day in the light of its background in the World War and the years previous to the War.

Mussolini, she brought out, was formerly a member of the Socialist government. In 1919, however, he organized the Fascist party which developed until it became the dominant party of Italy with Mussolini as its chief.

Miss Sweet spoke of Italy in terms of Mussolini for what he has done and what he has said comprise our knowledge of Italy to-day. She pointed out that he is friendly to Austria and is trying to strengthen Austria against France. He is also on friendly terms with Hungary and favors a union of Austria, Hungary and the Danubian countries. This alliance is opposed by France as is also Mussolini's effort to expand Italy in Dalmatia. He and France, it seems, cannot come to terms.

MUSIC NOTES

Nan Cooke Smith Gives Piano Recital

On Sunday evening, October 29th, Nan Cooke Smith gave an informal piano recital in the drawing-room. Her program included the following numbers:
Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring. BACH-HESS
First Movement, Sonata,
Opus 31, Number 3. . . . . BEETHOVEN
Widmung. . . . . SCHUMANN-LISTZ
Nocturne in B Flat Minor. . . . . DEBUSSY
Arkansas Traveler. . . . . DAVID GUION

Community Concert Series Announced

The Roanoke Community Concert Association is planning to present four concerts this season, bringing to Roanoke artists of national and international fame. Beginning November 14th with Rose Bampton, mezzo soprano, the recital will occur at various intervals throughout the season. Nickoli Orloff, pianist, will follow Miss Bampton on January 10th. A trio composed of cello, harp and flute comes on March 12th; and Nelson Eddy, baritone, closes the series on April 3d. Those members of the Hollins student body and faculty who belong to the Association have a great deal in store for them.

Committees Appointed by Student Council

Appointments to the Endowment and Curriculum Committees have been announced by Student Council. Jane Plitt will serve as Chairman of the Endowment Committee.

Mary Fletcher will serve as Chairman of the Curriculum Committee, which is composed of Sarah Gilliam, Jean Staples, Mary Anna Nettleton, Louise Harrison and one other Junior.

CAMPUS CRUMBS

Gus, feeling intellectual, was bidding friend roommate good-night in French, Spanish, German and Italian. Coming to the end of her repertoire she asked: "Jodie, what is good-night in Chinese?" And Josephine's resourceful reply was: "Clankety-clank."

Variety is the spice of life, at least that is what Emma thinks. Instead of answering "present" when her name is called, Emma is more cordial and says, "hello."

"E. P." has found a new talent of mind reading for, when called on to elucidate on Miss Fletcher's remarks in class, she explains: "Well, Charlotte thinks . . ."

Needlework and knitting would seem to be in order among the hockey spectators who are told not to get so excited or shout so loudly.

All of this is linked up with nationalism, the industrial revolution, democracy, and so on, so forth, and so fifth, says Miss Scott.

As Trimble hesitates over a Political Science report and explains her hesitation is due to the fact that she cannot translate her shorthand notes, Dr. Colfelt fills in the interim with, "Yesterday a movie in German; to-day a report in shorthand."

"I am studying equity."
"E. P.," "What's that about? Horses?"

Y. W. C. A. Gives Party to Children

On Friday afternoon, before Halloween, the Social Service Committee of the Y. W. C. A. gave a Halloween party to the children at the schoolhouse on the road to Salem. Members of this Committee, under the Chairmanship of Doll Sweet, go to the schoolhouse every Friday afternoon to play with the children. They made the Halloween Friday very special, with many games, bobbing for apples and refreshments.

Mary Monroe Penick Will Lead Foreign Tour

Mary Monroe Penick, '28, will lead a Brownell Tour in Europe this summer, Susanna Turner announced in student government meeting, October 30th. Miss Penick helped lead a tour last year. This summer she has been asked to take entire charge of a tour, and she is now collecting her party together.

Her group will be composed of college girls and she especially invites girls from Hollins. The Brownell groups are usually composed of about sixteen persons, and if enough people from Hollins are interested the tour may be made a "Hollins special." However, if a girl is interested in going, whether or not the party is made up entirely of Hollins girls, she will find herself among congenial companions, for Brownell assembles its party through invitations, not through advertising.

The itinerary for the tour has not been planned as yet, but it will be made after the group is assembled to suit the tastes and pocket books of those going. As Miss Penick is an experienced traveler, however, a girl interested may be sure she will get the most out of her time and money.

"Maedchen in Uniform" Given in Little Theatre

"Maedchen in Uniform," the sensational German talking picture which was shown in the Little Theatre, November 1st, has received unprecedented praise from the public and the press here and abroad. As an unusual story of the stern discipline of a Prussian boarding school for officers' daughters, and its crushing effect upon the life of the students, it is a cinematic triumph. The acting of Hertha Thiele and Dorothea Wieck make it one of the best performances of the past year. The group acting, moreover, is excellent, especially in the scenes on the stairways and in the dormitory; and particular care has been exercised in choosing types of students and teachers for the groups. Dramatically, the play is grippingly intense and shows the German tendency to "hold" scenes of psychological change. Acted by a group of new actresses in Germany, "Maedchen in Uniform" is characteristic of the new spirit of youth and freedom being expressed by the Germany of to-day.

Students Participate in Education Program

Participating in the Education Week Program, Hertha Rottsieper, Nan Cooke Smith and Peggy MacDowell attended the meeting of the Roanoke County Woman's Club on November 2d, at the clubhouse near Salem. Hertha Rottsieper spoke on modern Germany, and Nan Cooke Smith and Peggy MacDowell played several selections on the piano. The program for the occasion was in charge of Mrs. Rath.

PRESIDENT RANDOLPH VISITS COLLEGES AND CENTURY OF PROGRESS

Although educational purposes comprised the major aims of her expedition, the social phase of the visit was not entirely omitted. In Chicago and Washington, at teas given in her honor, she saw large groups of alumnae. At Bryn Mawr, too, she saw a much smaller group of old Hollins girls. Again, however, she is forgetful of education. For the teas and gatherings were not only friendly tête-a-têtes but enlightening discussions of modern educational problems.

Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, editor of The Richmond News-Leader, was guest speaker at the Convention dinner Friday evening.

Membership Basis for Riding Club Raised

MANY NEW RIDERS HAVE BEEN ACCEPTED

Seeking to raise its quality of horsemanship the Riding Club this year has raised its entrance standards. Each girl must pass the following tests:

1. Mount and dismount; 2. Back the horse; 3. Turn horse, keeping its front legs in same place; 4. Walk, trot and canter; and 5. Canter, doing the figure "8." The girls are then graded A, B, C or D, according to their performances.

New members for this year are: Marion Bankson, Gertrude Brown, Lelia Cooke, Annette Kellogg, Elizabeth Kump, Emily Lafoon, Winifred Miller, Elizabeth Morrison, Lelia Reynolds, Elizabeth Speer, Jean Warner, Geraldine Welch and Helen Wilson.

Any other girls interested in trying out are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Roanoke Hockey Club is Organized

Hollins has extended the use of its hockey field and equipment to a Hockey Club in Roanoke. The Club played its first game last Saturday at 2:30, on the Hollins hockey field.

The Club is composed mostly of college graduates who have played hockey during their college years. Any members of the faculty who would like to join them in their playing are invited to do so. The Club will practice every Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

GERMAN STUDENT SPEAKS ON NAZI EVOLUTION

(Continued from Page 1, Column 4) man to cooperate and join the work of reconstruction. In January, 1933, last, President von Hindenburg gave the power over to Hitler, who since then has put into reality what for long years he saw before him as a way to general recovery.

His first aim is to abolish unemployment, which is achieved by reviving industry and trade and by carrying out great governmental schemes of cultivating land, building dams, and automobile streets, by foresting and agricultural settlements. Labor-Service Camps, with a twofold aim, are formed all over the country to absorb unemployment as long as no real jobs are to be found, and to bring young people of all classes into contact with each other that they may be able to understand and respect the other classes.

With these huge internal tasks before us, to me the idea that Germany could want war is perfectly ridiculous. We left the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference because it had come to a deadlock. The other nations were perfectly decided not to disarm and, on the other hand, as decided not to allow Germany to have at least defensive weapons. Germany's remaining in the League lost its sense as we could no longer add anything to this fixed point. But the whole nation stands united behind Hitler in its desire for peace and will be eager to cooperate in abolishing arms to the last machine gun as soon as actual efforts that end are made on the side of the other nations.

Hockey Matches Wind Up Class Season

ODD-EVEN PRACTICES WILL BEGIN THIS WEEK

The interclass hockey games started Thursday, November 2d, with the Freshman-Sophomore game. The final score was 3-0, in favor of the Freshman team. Josephine Lancashire made one goal, and Pat Scott made two for the Class of '37.

The general criticism was that too many long drives were made by the Freshman team. There was not enough true "hockey sense" shown, in spite of the fact that both sides of the field were equally played. The Sophomores, moreover, showed hard fight, but lost a number of goals due to the fact that members of the forward line did not look up before shooting for goals.

The following day, November 3d, the Senior-Junior game was commenced, but because of the rain the game was called off after the first half. This score, incomplete, ended 4-0 in favor of the Seniors. The game will be played over and is scheduled for November 8th. The first half, however, was very promising. It moved fast and unusually good plays were made by individuals on both teams. The Seniors showed splendid team work. The Juniors, on the other hand, had three or four outstanding individual plays, but lacked cooperation.

The class hockey teams, as announced in Keller, for this season are:

Hockey Meet to be at Westhampton

Off to Westhampton! Once again the time has come for our representatives to distinguish themselves on the hockey field. Last year they went to Sweetbriar and last year, you remember, Ellie Cadbury was elected Captain of the All-Virginian Hockey Team. Here's hoping they do as well this year. Ellie, Adria Kellogg, Eleanor Webb and Alethea Patrick leave here Friday for the weekend in Richmond. Girls from practically all the colleges in Virginia will be guests of Westhampton College and from them the All-Virginian Team will be selected.

The entire program of games has not yet been announced. On Saturday afternoon, however, one of the outstanding events will be an exhibition lacrosse game. It promises to be a great week-end—good luck, girls!

Mr. Thomas Follows Peace Theme in Chapel

Commemorating the close of the World War and the cessation of hostilities, the Chapel services this week follow a peace theme. Special passages and hymns have been selected and printed for this use and are given to each student as she enters the Chapel. The choir has learned anthems in keeping with the theme of each night's worship, thus dedicating all features of the service to peace.

Armistice Day, which will be observed next Saturday, will be especially commemorated in Roanoke by parades and other community observances. Two minutes of silence in memory of the war dead will be observed at eleven o'clock.

Right Inner.....EMILY LAFFOON
Center Half.....BETTY ALLABOUGH
Right Half.....ESTHER SICARD
Right Full.....ELIZABETH WILLIAMS (Capt.)
Goal.....JERRY WELCH

Substitutes.....GABRIEL LEMMON JOHNSEN DENNY COCKE

Odd and Even hockey season has also begun. The Even captain for this year is Eleanor Cadbury, and Louise King will manage the Odd team. The Odd-Even game will be played on November 29th. This year the game is expected to be closer than in previous years. Both teams have equally good material to develop. The game will probably go to that team which works together best, since team work each year has decided so definitely the victory.

Senior Class Presents "What Price Olympus" as Hallowe'en Stunt

The Class of '34 presented an "airy fantastical comedy" entitled What Price Olympus as the annual Senior Hallowe'en stunt. The play was written by Lillian Burns and Dorothy Bandy and the entire Senior Class participated in its production.

The first act of the play took place on Mt. Olympus at nectar time. All the gods and goddesses of Olympus were grouped around the throne of Jupiter eating their nectar and "ordering the universe." While they were eating, Zephyr, the windbag, came puffing in with a strange document in her hand which was, in fact, HOLLINS STUDENT LIFE! It created great consternation among the gods. They finally decided to send Pandora down to this queer place, Hollins College, where the document was printed.

Pandora landed in the Hollins dining-room at dinner time. Lewis led her to a Senior table, where she sat down with the mortals and chatted. She learned much gossip and many unusual tales to tell when she returned to the heights of Olympus.

Pandora interested all the inhabitants of Mt. Olympus with her stories about Hollins. She told the gods that they were entirely too slow and antiquated. "Why, you should see the things they do at Hollins College!" she said. She told them about Tinker Mountain and Tinker Day. As the curtain went down the gods and goddesses decided to change their abode from Mt. Olympus to Tinker Mountain.

The dining-room scene was particularly amusing in its take-off on local hits. Well cast and acted, What Price Olympus takes its place among the outstanding stunts given here. The cast and committees were as follows:

Jupiter, the Boss.....MILDRED RAYNOLDS
Juno, His Doting Wife.....FRANCES ELKINS

Students and Faculty Enjoy Hallowe'en Banquet and Stunt

Preceding the delightful Hallowe'en banquet on Saturday night before Hallowe'en, the faculty gave a calendar stunt in the dining room. Among the dates that were immortalized in these stunts were the day of the Odd and Even hockey game, Founder's Day, May Day and Commencement. The stunts were given in full costume and were appropriate in every case.

Following the banquet at seven o'clock, a dance was given in Keller. First, however, the Sophomores gave a play verging on tragedy concerning the "sale of the old homestead." The name of the play was Honesty is the Best Policy. The end took a happy turn when Peg Clark, as the hero, saved Bebe Holland from the villain, acted by Mary Helen Hirschfeld. No words can express the happiness of the mother, Florence Shelley, at this opportune rescue.

Alumna Injured in Automobile Accident

While en route to Hollins for a surprise visit to Mrs. Ruth Crupper Reeves, Mrs. Wilhemina Lurenberger Brinson, '13, was badly cut and bruised when the automobile in which she was riding skidded and fell over an embankment near Buchanan, Virginia, Saturday noon. Mrs. Zimmerman, Mrs. Brinson's sister, who was driving the car, was more seriously hurt. Mrs. Reeves was called to the scene of the accident and had the two injured taken to the Jefferson Hospital in Roanoke, where they were patients until discharged Monday afternoon. The car, which struck a raised portion of the road and skidded out of control of the driver, was completely demolished.

"Alumnae Quarterly" to be Issued Next Week

The Fall Issue of the Alumnae Quarterly will appear on November 15th and will contain many articles of interest to students as well as alumnae. Features of this issue are "The College Woman: A Factor," a discussion by Judith Riddick Reynolds of the function of the college woman in her community, which is based on a letter sent by the President of the Vassar College Alumnae Association, through the National Education Association, to the alumnae president of all other colleges. The Vassar Alumnae head made a two-fold appeal: Firstly, that every college alumna make herself aware of her community and, secondly, that being aware of the conditions in her community she ally herself with "any existing non-political group that is taking steps to combat adverse conditions or, if necessary, help to create such a group." Another feature is the report on the Third Annual Herald-Tribune Women's Conference on Women's Problems made by Miriam McClammy, who attended as a representative from Hollins.

A letter from Miss Matty to the many Alumnae who wrote her upon the occasion of her retirement from the College Presidency last summer is included in the Quarterly. In this, Miss Matty pays tribute to Dr. Randolph, writing: "That she will pour all of herself into the moulding of a great modern college we who so love Hollins may know; that she has much to give is sure."

Class Singing Has Been Resumed

Class singing between 12:00 o'clock and 12:15 has been revived, and class songs are again heard as they were several years ago. The Senior Class sings every other Friday, the Juniors on alternate Thursdays, and the Sophomores on every other Wednesday. Many new class songs have been composed, including the "Perfect '36" by the Sophomores.

At a recent class election Bebo Weaver was elected Junior Song Leader to teach the songs and to lead the class when they sing on the campus.
